Interested in exploring other directions for your career? This series will provide some insights from successful alumni who have done just that. You will learn from alumni about their journeys, navigating the new direction in their careers, and learn more about the impact work they are doing in their current roles. In this session, we will hear from Dr. Eric Mejia, a Marine Corps veteran, who initially worked in collections before finding a career in higher education working at various institutions mostly in admissions. He recently pivoted to join the admissions team at Verbum Dei Jesuit High School.
